

Stockley's Herbal Medicines Interactions

Product Description

Stockley's Herbal Medicines Interactions is a unique collaboration between practising clinical pharmacists and experts in the fields of drug interactions, clinical herbal medicines, phytopharmacovigilance and regulation of herbal medicinal products. The breadth of the Stockley team's knowledge provides unparalleled depth, with clinical and experimental evidence being dissected in tandem to deliver impartial guidance.

Stockley's Herbal Medicines Interactions moves beyond the coverage of other products by not only including the major herbal interactions, but also exploring the interactions of less common, but increasingly popular herbal medicines, in detail.

Purpose

To provide reliable, rigorously researched answers to questions such as:

- Are the drugs and substances in question known to interact or is the interaction only theoretical or speculative?
- If they have do interact, how serious is it?
- Has the interaction been described many times or only once?
- Are all patients affected or only a few?
- Is it best to avoid these two substances altogether, or can the interaction be accommodated in some way?
- What alternative and safer drugs can be used instead?
